

There is entirely too much power in the hands of a very small number of powerful media companies who spoon feed Americans with the news and programming they want us to see, hear, or read. THEY select the content, and in most cases it is pretty rank with really no redeeming attributes.

As a part owner of the airwaves and other frequencies (citizen of the U.S), I resent my ownership being consigned to the use of a few. They have not served us well. They are not trustworthy.

I have always been a strong opponent of governmental regulation, especially of the private sector of the economy. But the airwaves and frequencies belong to the people and should be regulated strongly for PUBLIC interest. These large media companies FEED at the public trough, and WE should decide what they eat, and how much they eat, so that what they excrete might be wholesome rather than the fetid mess we now have to put up with.